MIHONOSEKI

We recommend seeing the nostalgic world along the Aoishi-datami paved street.

It's like going back in time… this part of town is like a scene from a movie!

Why is it best to visit both Izumo Taisha and Miho Jinja?

Daikoku, the deity of matchmaking shrine Izumo Taisha, and Ebisu, the deity of commerce shrine Miho Jinja, are father and son. It has long been said that visiting Izumo Taisha and Miho Jinja holds the same power as visiting Ise Jingu Grand Shrine.

Miho Jinja is dedicated to two gods: Ebisu, the god of prosperous business, and Mihotsuhime, the goddess of abundant harvest. That's why the shrine has two main halls, a very unusual form of shrine architecture.

Ebisu is even the god of music!

Did you know that Ebisu is also the god of song and dance? Many famous musicians also make pilgrimages to Miho Jinja. Who knows who you might run into…?

Many stars have been spotted here incognito.

Power up↑↑

The tai (sea bream) with an ear of rice is a symbol combining both deities' blessings. Twice the luck!

Tada!!

Keep an eye out for it~

This is Ebisu's favorite fishing spot! The view from the cape is the best!

The Mihonoseki Lighthouse is our recommended date spot

Take a walk up along the path up to the lighthouse, refresh your ties with nature, and let the scenery imprint itself in your memory. There are blue waters are far as you can see… and a buffet! Highly recommended!

Oh, so this is Ebisu's hometown.

Miho Jinja here in the land of myth is the head shrine of over 3,000 Ebisu shrines around the country.

The seafood here is abundant and tasty, too.

Street stalls

The town is filled with street stalls. Take a seat by the sea and enjoy a snack from them!

Freshly dried squid… yum!
